Both Trusteeship And Segregation Certain To Fail

Two Races in South Africa Present Great National Problem

OPINIONS VARY

Professor F. Clarke Discusses Racial Questions at Royal Empire Society

"The only lesson that South Africa has to offer in the solution of any other nation's racial question is a lesson of things not to do," claimed Professor F. Clarke, speaking at a luncheon of the Royal Empire Society in the Windsor Hotel yesterday.

Professor Clarke began his address by giving a few statistics regarding the area and population of South Africa. The Union of South Africa, he said, is about two-thirds the size of the province of Quebec, and has a population approximately three-fourths that of the Dominion. In natural resources Nature has been considerably less generous than in the case of our country.

Many Opinions

There exists, said the speaker, a mass of diverse opinions on the great national question brought about by two distinct races occupying the same territory. He was able to distinguish, however, two main lines of thought on the problem. First, there are some who favour segregation or dualism. Second, there are those who consider that the attitude of the native whites toward the Blacks should be one of trusteeship.

Those favouring segregation claim that it is possible for each race to work out its own respective destiny without causing inharmonious relations with the other. Those adopting the trusteeship view, point out that the Whites are very much superior to the Blacks in intelligence and ability. Therefore, they insist, it is their obligation to protect the Negroes.

Condemns Both Schools

It is necessary, said Professor Clarke, to look beneath the surface of these two schools of thought. As regards segregation, it is found that the real policy of its proponents is to allow the white race to develop along its own lines. As for the Blacks, they

Female Fashions

Favour Formality

Macdonald College Lecturer Describes Coming Modes

The trend of the season in women's styles was reviewed by Miss Hazel B. McCain in a radio address over Station CKAC yesterday afternoon. The National Council of Education, English Section, sponsored the lecture.

A distinct note of formality will be in evidence this year, stated Miss McCain. Skirts will be somewhat longer, the correct length for each occasion depending on the hour of the day; the later, the longer. The "leg of mutton" sleeves will involve a return to 1890. Padding, however, will be allowed above the waistline only. Fur, which is much cheaper this year, will be used more extensively than heretofore.

Corduroy velvet, introduced by Schiaparelli, will be much in favour. Stockings this year are, it is decreed, to be less interesting, dull colours predominating. Hats are of the turban type, and are high at the back, sloping forward.

Miss McCain, who lectures at Macdonald College, is also Superintendent of Quebec Women's Institutes. Her remarks were preceded by the presentation of several musical numbers. "Impermeable" from "Cavalleria Rusticana" was played.

To Visit Foundry

The members of the Mining and Metallurgical Society and all those interested will visit the Robert Mitchell Company Foundry, on Friday afternoon. They are asked to meet at two o'clock in front of the Chemistry Building. At five o'clock, they will be addressed by E. J. Carls on the subject of "Copper Mining and Smelting in Peru".

New Art Group Started in City

Department of Extra-mural Relations Aids in Formation

PRINCIPLES STATED

Drawing, Painting And Modelling to be Mainly Dealt With

Through the efforts and initiative of a number of the younger modern group in Montreal, a School of Art has been organized with the assistance of the department of extra-mural relations at McGill and the Mechanics' Institute, who will supply equipment and premises for the operation of the school, which will be known as The Atelier.

The group has definite and frankly stated principles on which their work will be based. The effort is described as a teaching association of artists for the study and practice of the arts of form. Drawing, painting and modelling will be the main branches of art dealt with.

Prospectus To Be Issued

The prospectus which will be issued shortly explains clearly the ideas behind the organization of The Atelier.

"It is essential that amongst our educational institutions there should exist a centre for the study of free development of the arts. Until a few years ago, Canada with all the Anglo-Saxon countries, adhered to a dying tradition of romantic art, and it is only within the last decade or so that Canadian painters have shown any curiosity towards what might well be described as a modern renaissance which had its beginnings in France in the early sixties.

Return to Classical

"We can only hope to develop a living tradition through an awareness of the best tendencies of our time in all countries. One must come abreast before one can forge ahead.

Plumbers Prepare For Annual Banquet

Executive Presents Varied Entertainment

Members of the Faculty of Engineering will gather to enjoy the second Annual Engineering banquet, at Queen's Hotel on Thursday evening, November 26th.

The executive has exerted itself to prepare a good evening's entertainment. It is not trying to make any profit but does not want to suffer any loss. The main idea is for everybody to have a good time. The meal will consist of a full turkey dinner, and a bottle of beer or ginger ale will be served to all. Free cigarettes will be distributed.

A few speeches are also on the program and will fill part of the time, while cabaret entertainment, community singing, music and possibly boxing will complete the evening. The success of the banquet depends entirely on the student body; the architects will be gladly welcome as in past years.

Second Production Will Depend on Financial Success of First

Choice Commended By Dr. Walter in Article on Author's Work

Tonight the curtain will rise on the Players' Club's latest effort, "From Morn to Midnight", a dramatic masterpiece of Georg Kaiser, the founder of the modern school of German drama. Last night's final rehearsal showed both acting and scenery to be well up to standard, and the success of the production will depend mainly on the support given it by the student body in the four performances scheduled.

Tickets have sold well for Saturday night, but many good seats are still obtainable for today and tomorrow, and for the matinee Saturday. Unless wholehearted support is received, the Club will not be able to give its usual second performance next term.

Kaiser's Work Described

The following letter, dealing with the life and work of Georg Kaiser, and commending the choice of play for this term's production, has been received by the Club from Dr. H. Walter, head of the Department of Germanic Languages.

"The performance of 'From Morn till Midnight' by the Players' Club is an interesting and courageous venture likely to put their histrionic powers and the scenic possibilities of their stage to a severe test. The experiment is to be commended above all because it makes a departure once more from the anodyne conventional atmosphere to which most amateur dramatic clubs seem to be fated to return periodically after some bold foray into the perilous regions of the unconventional.

"Yet intellectual and artistic boldness is the inalienable right as it is the duty of university students worthy of the name. So the region of the unconventional ought to be preeminently the scene of action of academic dramatic clubs. The works of Georg Kaiser will supply them with all the

Operatic Society Begins Rehearsals

First Practice at Strathcona Hall This Evening

After a very long delay occasioned by the non-arrival of the musical score for "The Yeoman of the Guard," the members of the society will start serious rehearsals at once, the first being tonight at eight o'clock in Strathcona Hall. The production of the opera is scheduled for the early Spring, and as this piece of Gilbert and Sullivan is one of the longest of the Savoy operas, there is very little time left in which to prepare for the show.

After being held up in the costumes for the past two weeks, the score and the libretto have finally arrived from New York, the date of the production has been set and all is in readiness for the work of rehearsal. As the time is so short, it is absolutely imperative that all the members of the Society be present at this evening's rehearsal, including all the principals. It is the opinion of the executive, that none of those who are not present will be able to take part in the show and so they urge everyone interested to put in an appearance tonight.

One of the most noticeable signs of the shortness of the time remaining is the fact that the orchestra will commence rehearsals early next week. The orchestration has arrived along with the music for the vocal parts, and Dick Sancton, who is in charge of this particular branch of the Society's activities is now assembling the orchestra for the forthcoming production.

It is rumoured that this year's musicians will be all recruited from the college, without calling in any outsiders, and Dick Sancton is the authority for the statement that the music this year will be better than ever before, better even than last season's "The Pirates of Penzance." It is hoped that all students of the University who are interested in music and singing, even if they have had no previous experience, will turn up at the rehearsal tonight.

Worldwide Peace Does Not Depend On Disarmament

Anglican Theological Students Held Debate Last Night at Diocesan College

NEGATIVE VICTORS

C. Wolff And C. Earle Successful Against A. Marshall And H. Doody

"Disarmament is contrary to human nature as combat is the chief instinct in a man's nature," stated C. E. F. Wolff in upholding the negative side in the resolution "Total disarmament will produce international amity and world peace." The affirmative side in this debate was represented by Arthur Marshall and Hubert Doody while C. E. F. Wolff and Cyril Earle upheld the negative. This debate was held last night in the Convocation Hall of the Diocesan College and the result was a victory for the negative side.

Arthur Marshall was the first speaker of the evening and at the outset defined the term Disarmament, disarmament we may conceive of two things; either complete destruction of armaments, or the view as upheld by the League of Nations, —that disarmament is a reduction by international agreement, by national armed forces. In supporting his view that with the means of war removed no war could come about, the speaker cited instances in which Cant, Erasmus and many present day thinkers upheld this view.

Fears Removed

Disarmament will produce international amity since it will remove fears which at present make international friendship impossible. If you remove the means of warfare by disarmament, it will be impossible for any country to fight and must, of necessity, result in world peace. The speaker referred to many noted politicians of the day as being of the opinion that peace, international amity and better relations between nations could only be affected by a reduction in armaments. The Versailles treaty itself, by limiting German arms, had in view the subsequent limitation of the arms of other countries.

The next speaker of the evening was C. E. F. Wolff, the leader of the negative side. At the outset he stressed the fact that man by his very nature is pugnacious. To illustrate this point the various stages of man's existence were shown to be one of combat. In the primitive days man used his teeth and nails to defend himself but that method was supplanted by stones

Progress On Red And White Rapid

Only Two More Weeks For Submission of Music

Due to the early start of the work on this year's Red and White Revue, plans for the staging of the annual student production are now much further advanced than was the case of this time last year. All departments are hard at work preparing for the production of the show, which will take place next March in Moyse Hall.

As there are less than two weeks to the closing date for the submission of music for the Revue, several students are working on numbers which must be in the hands of the Producer by Monday, November 30th. It is expected that having the music in at that time will permit of a great deal of work being done on dances for the choruses before the Christmas vacation. Concerning skits, it was learned that, amongst others, many of those who have written successful ones in the past are planning to submit material for this year's show. All skits must be in by Monday, December 14th.

Plans for the actual staging of the Revue are well under way, with ideas for the opening number and the finale the main consideration at present.

The questionnaires that freshmen were required to fill out this year are proving valuable to the Executive in the unearthing of new talent. By the use of the information on these cards, Producer Bruce Ross hopes to discover much dramatic and musical ability that might otherwise have remained hidden behind the cloak of freshman modesty.

Prom Committee Expects Success At Junior Dance

ARRANGEMENTS for the Junior Prom, to be held on Friday, December 4, in the Windsor Hotel, are in full swing. Tickets are selling fast, and although their sale is not yet open to the student body in general, the Executive of the Dance prophesies a large crowd, and, consequently, a good time. Tickets are being held for Juniors only till Saturday, and then will be open for all except freshmen. Owing to a big demand, no tickets will be reserved, and all must be paid for on the spot.

The Prom has always been a success, and this year the Committee hopes to surpass all previous efforts, and to make the event more enjoyable than ever. Tickets may be had at any time from the following students representing the Juniors: R. V. C., Margaret McKay; Law, Max Bulton; Med., Ray Luft; Arts, George Owen; Dent., Abe Lapin; Eng., Orley Mason; Comm., G. C. Hammond.

Campus Surprised by Bell-Like Chime From New Clock

Handsome Timepiece Guaranteed to Give Correct Time

Besides its promise of keeping both students and professors on time for lectures, the new clock which commenced work three days ago in the Roddick Gates is fulfilling the added function of awakening sleepy classes every quarter hour with the exhortation and encouragement of its chiming.

The clock is electric, and is guaranteed always to say the same thing on all four sides, and never to be wrong,—well hardly ever. Complaints have been heard that its face is hard to read, but it is a question whether the student body really want a perfect clock, and this might almost be called its saving grace.

It is probable also that complaints will be received from residents of Strathcona Hall, and others in the vicinity. If the chiming is not discontinued at night, as they seem of a penetrating nature.

Complaints or no complaints, it is a handsome clock, and Henry Birks and Sons have done their work in record time, seeing that Mr. McFarlane, grounds superintendent, did not feel sure of its being installed before December first.

The old clock was run by mechanism, which proved faulty in governing the four faces, and, because of its exposure to the elements, could not be depended on for the correct time.

It is noticed in the new electric timepiece that the face has been set in away from exposure, and it is this fact that makes it difficult to read from an angle. The face is smaller too, and cannot be read from so great a distance.

But to make up for all this comes the 'surprising' feature of the chiming, after the style of Big Ben, which gives people at a considerable distance the correct time every quarter of an hour. This addition to the campus seems to have a unifying effect on the scattered buildings, which is welcome in a university almost swamped by a growing city which tends to disregard it.

Will Discuss Japan

S. W. Phelps to Address League of Nations Club

The complexities of the Manchurian question will be discussed by Mr. Phelps, B.A., a graduate of Yale, at the League of Nations Club Meeting this afternoon.

There has been world-wide interest centred on Japan for the past few weeks, and as Mr. Phelps has been connected with affairs of Press and government for many years, students may be assured of an interesting and authentic account of the situation. An invitation to attend the meeting

Dentistry, Engineering, Theology, Law, Choose Members Unanimously

Woodward, Watt, Sparkes, Nesbitt, Get In Without Opposition — R.V.C. Has Three Nominees — Baker, Gamble And Stuart in Medicine — Hamilton And Denton For Arts And Sciences — Fulcher And Ebbitt In Commerce — Members For Both Classes Scarlet Key Also Nominated — Voting on November 27th.

Four out of the eight representatives to the Students' Council have been elected by acclamation. The faculties which have already chosen their men are those of Theology, Law, Dentistry and Engineering, to be represented by Kenneth W. Woodward, Al Watt, Jerome Sparkes and Dean Nesbitt respectively.

R.V.C. and Medicine head the list with the number of nominees sent in, having three each. To represent the former are running, Isabel Dawson, Sally Hay, Marjorie Lynch, nominated twice; for the latter L. Baker, C. S. Gamble and E. A. Stuart. The Arts and Science nominees are Douglas Hamilton and Ronald Denton, and the Commerce candidates are Gordon Fulcher and Stuart N. Ebbitt.

Nominations closed at noon yesterday, and elections will take place on the 27th. Nominations for members of the Scarlet Key Society also closed at the same time.

To Begin Season With Open Forum

P. Porter Will Address First Meeting of Labour Club

TRAVELLED WIDELY

Has Visited Seventy Colleges in Past Three Years — Recently Back From Orient

The McGill Labour Club, following out their usual policy in studying labour problems and the economic and political sides of the various labour movements, has invited a speaker down to address their first-meeting of the season on Monday, Nov. 23rd. The meeting will be held in Strathcona Hall at 8:15.

The guest speaker of the evening will be Mr. Paul Porter, of New York. Mr. Porter is a forceful and well-qualified lecturer. As Field Secretary of the League for Industrial Democracy, he has visited since 1928 about seventy colleges and more civic forums throughout the whole of the United States. He has travelled extensively throughout the Orient, having returned from his last visit in October, 1931. He has also made an extensive investigation into employment conditions in the steel mills, factories and shops of the crowded industrial areas of Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Mr. Porter is a frequent contributor to serious-minded American magazines, was once a correspondent for the Nation and New Leader, and is the co-author of "Am I getting an Education?"

The subject of the address at the Labour Club meeting will be the Students in a Changing World or "The Challenge of a New Social Order". In addition, Mr. Porter will deliver an address in the Auditorium of the Central Y.M.C.A. the following night on the Situation in Manchuria.

Press reports, coming from newspapers as far away as the Japan Times (Tokyo), laud Mr. Porter's speeches and declare him to be an excellent speaker, and a master in the fields on which he discourses.

Charades Prepared By French Society

Performance To Be Staged For R.V.C. Students Today

For the entertainment of its members, this afternoon, the Societe Francophone is presenting a number of skits in Charade form.

These Charades will not tax anyone's knowledge of French, and all students, particularly Freshettes are cordially invited.

The object of this society is to encourage students to improve their French by conversing with members more fluent than themselves, and meetings are usually devoted to this. The meeting will be held in the R.V. C. Common Room at four o'clock, with President Anne-Marie DuBois presiding.

and join in the discussion to-night at 8:30, in Strathcona Hall, is extended to all those interested in International affairs.

"Morn to Midnight"

Tonight, when the curtain rises on the Players' Club presentation of "From Morn to Midnight", it will also rise on the season for major activities on the Campus, as this is the first to take place this year. As usual, while the others are congratulating themselves on progressing at a good rate, the Players' Club is ready to present an ambitious production.

The play is in keeping with the previous work of the Club, which has progressed greatly since its inception; last year, it will be remembered, ending its season with "The Beggar on Horseback" one of the most modern of modern plays.

According to notices received from those who have witnessed the rehearsals, this production will be quite up to the standard of previous work, and, as will be noticed among the news, the choice of the play has been approved by many who know it.

In addition to the acting and the play itself, we are also informed that the scenery alone is well worth attendance at the production; it surpassing all previous work in this line, which is generally of a high order.

The Players' Club has achieved an excellent reputation among amateur groups of the city, but, of course, depends for its support largely on the student body. While we trust that there will be no need for fear as to the future, in this year of depression, when budgets all about the Campus have been ruthlessly cut, success in this first venture is absolutely essential for the carrying on of work for the rest of the year.

This fact alone, in view of the work done in previous years, would warrant the support of the whole student body, even if they were not assured that they will witness, at the performances to be held during the next few days, work which will probably surpass all that has been done up to the present.

Bitter Election Struggles

If for nothing else, the McGill student body can be noted for the unanimity with which it hails its great men. It can squabble most readily and waste reams of paper over minor issues but when it comes to picking the men who shall for a year guide the destinies of the student government and administer the students' money, lo, all is serene. That so many hearts could beat as one is scarcely believable but the nominations published in today's paper show that there are four Faculties, or, we might say, one half of the constituencies, which are quite content to let the man who is to represent them on the Council next year be picked without the formality of a vote.

The situation seems, if anything, to be getting worse. At this time last year there was but one acclamation. If precedent is to be followed there will be at least one more post go without a fight due to the usual retirements. In that case we shall have the scarcely democratic condition of a majority of the elective members of the Council holding office by virtue of the say-so of the few who nominated them. The favouritism slogan has not been raised in the past few years, but the response to the request for nominees shows that the time is ripe for favouritism to exist, and the student body will have, as always, no one to blame but itself.

Unfortunately, the term "student body" is impersonal and decidedly vague. It does not drive home to each member of that group that he has been unaware of the responsibilities which accompany participation in what is theoretically a democratic student government. Moreover, nomination date is past and the mischief has already been done.

The trend seems to be towards some form of government which shall not be elective but appointive. The present system seems to entail too much effort on the part of its unwilling members. Why not, then, be done with the whole tommyrot of going through the motions of nominating and electing? Why not make the Council a purely appointive body whose function is not to administer but to do the spade-work under the direction of the University authorities, who would be the paramount body in student affairs? Certainly the officials of the University could give scarcely less attention to questions regarding student affairs than those students themselves give at present.

We may not yet have pocket boroughs, but something seems to be decidedly rotten.

the BOOK SHELF

VIRGINIA WOOLF IN NEW VENTURE

THE WAVES. By Virginia Woolf.—The Hogarth Press.

(By W. W. W.)

Is it or is it not a novel? For one am not going to speculate. It is the lawful child of Virginia Woolf's earlier book "Mrs. Dalloway". To be sure, the child uses a more poetic language but the resemblance is very distinct. For those who have never tasted the strange but delicious wine with which Mrs. Woolf intoxicates those who become her devotees I will, very humbly and with trembling, suggest how imbibe this heady liquor.

Introducing the different sections of the book and giving them the required atmosphere are short descriptions of the day and the sea. The day passes and the waves break on the shore, so the lives of the characters sweep quickly to the death which waits for us all.

We are first introduced to the children. As we follow the thoughts and sayings of the youngsters we find out, very gradually it is true, what they think of themselves and of one another. The pictures unfold gradually. Bit by bit we build up the picture of the characters. The characters move through life. From the days of childhood we follow them to school and then out into the world. There are marriages and deaths—the story ends. We get to know Bernard—always looking for phrases, and Percival—the very superior person. The girls grow up into women—women who love and are jealous.

All through the book are the most delightful pictures of people they meet. There is one of the boy who sees before him the life of a don, running "in and out of the skulls of Sophocles and Euripides like a maggot, with a high-minded wife, one of those University women." (Shades of R.V.C. shudder) Again we see the literary young man; now following Tolstol, now Byron and then Meredith. Then he is off to Paris, returning with a black tie after the Easter Vacation. Then there is the rather pompous headmaster saying goodbye to the boys as they leave school laden with suitably engraved prize-books—"He speaks with complete conviction. To him his words are true, though not to us."

The language of the book is strictly poetic, abounding in images, metaphors and similes. The short sentences and phrases give a swiftly-moving cadenced prose which is not unpleasant when the reader catches the rhythm and swing of it. There is enough stuff in this book to give the weaker brothers among the Free Versers material for several lifetimes.

Dive deep into "The Waves" catch the eddy and swell of the swiftly moving waters. It is not a book to be dipped into but to plunge into heartily. You will emerge with a feeling of exhilaration and a mind clear and ready for the weak, insipid thing we call life.

Of course Virginia is a woman. Her love for all things feminine warms an otherwise strong mind. No boys were ever like those in this book—thank God. But with this warning to the readers I can say, "All is forgiven, Virginia. You have done what you could. But the skirts do show." In this book the characters are better labelled, one of the artistic difficulties of Virginia's method, than in "Mrs. Dalloway", but even here it is sometimes difficult to figure which of the characters is talking. A difficult vehicle, this poetic stream-of-consciousness, plotless novel (?), to keep upon the straight road—but doesn't it take you to the most interesting places?

DAY THROWS LIGHT ON GOLD STANDARD

"SEVEN ADDRESSES ON THE GOLD STANDARD" by John Percival Day, B.A., B.Sc., D.Phil. Twenty pages. Price 50 cents. On sale at Burton's and the Dept. of Extra-Mural Relations.

(By R. I. C. P.)

The individual whose knowledge of the Gold Standard is limited will find in Dr. Day's booklet "Seven Addresses on the Gold Standard", a concise and lucid explanation of the whole mechanism of international exchange, together with recent variations from the normal procedure and some forecasts as to the likely outcome. The booklet, as its title implies, is a collection of several addresses on different aspects of the Gold Standard given by Dr. Day before local clubs and over the radio. The reader will find that Dr. Day has adjusted the technicality of the subject matter in each address to the mental capacity of the audience concerned. Nevertheless, it is an excellent handbook for students of International Trade; it rarely becomes too involved for the average person and never too simple to be uninteresting.

The first address contains a straightforward description of what the Gold Standard actually is while the second points out the results which follow the abandonment of the Standard. Canada, says Dr. Day, must choose between keeping to Gold and the American dollar standard or abandoning Gold and adopting the English sterling standard; that is she will either continue to buy more from the United States and sell less to Britain or will retain her share of the British market and buy less from the United States. The third lecture outlines the essential purposes of the Gold Standard and the fourth summarizes developments and changes that have taken place since the War.

In the fifth address, Dr. Day relates why Britain and other countries have been forced off the Standard while in the sixth he offers the possible methods which England may take to return to normality. This outline is expanded still further in the concluding lecture when Dr. Day has an opportunity to expound his own theory of the "sterling block" which will, in his opinion, form the easiest avenue of escape from economic and financial chaos for Great Britain and the countries who are wise enough to stabilize their price levels with the British one, and henceforth exchange rates closer to parity and restore a normal flow of trade. Dr. Day's arguments are convincing, and no one reading his proposal for abandonment of the "dollar standard" can do so without pausing to think deeply on the subject.

While repetition in the addresses is unavoidable yet the material contained therein is worth hunting for.

MEDICAL JOURNAL MAKES DEBUT.

THE MCGILL MEDICAL UNDERGRADUATE JOURNAL, Vol. I, No. 1, November 1931. Published by the Undergraduates in Medicine. (By R. L.)

The board in charge of the publication of the Medical Undergraduate Journal is to be commended for providing the medical student with a publication, wherein he can express himself about purely medical and also literary matters. The first number which appeared a week ago, despite certain faults, augurs well for the success of the venture.

The merit of the individual articles varies between wide limits. J. S. Smith's elucidation of the French system of medical education, I find the most satisfactory of all. "It is well-written, informative and goes beyond the mere record of entrance requirements to a French medical school. The French conception of medicine as an art primarily and a science secondarily is stated clearly and pertinently. C. C. Clay, John V. Nichols and W. A. Maycock deal in a less competent manner with the different systems of medical education prevalent in the United States, Germany, and Austria, and England.

The article by H. P. Macey tracing the evolution of the McGill medical course does not accomplish its purpose. It is obscured by the attempt to visualise the past and by bad writing. F. L. MacNaughton records the "first thoughts of a Junior Houseman" in a sincere though hazy manner. It seems to me that Gordon Lynch in his paper on "Artificial Pneumothorax in Pulmonary Tuberculosis" should have explained the term for the benefit of the curious among the students of the preclinical years, before launching into the treatment of the subject.

The literary section of the magazine is decidedly disappointing. The contributions by Titus Aduum and Ramsbottom Horseley are out of place in a magazine of the Journal's potential and putative quality.

The plan put forward in the editorial to make each issue largely a symposium on one particular subject has its advantages but it makes the reading of the magazine somewhat boring. Increasing the variety of subjects treated will, to my mind, increase the interest of and in the magazine.

BLURBINGS

Mr. John Masefield, the Poet Laureate, composed a special poem of dedication which was sung at Liverpool Cathedral on the occasion of Canon F. W. Dwyll's installation as the cathedral's first Dean.

A statue of Shakespeare is to be erected side by side with one of Mozart, representative of drama and opera, outside the magnificent new wing of the Royal Theatre at Copenhagen.

Mrs. Thomas Hardy and Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch are sponsors for a new book of children's verses, "Furry Folk and Fairies" written by Miss Margery Hart.

Mr. Harold Nicolson is giving a series of talks over the British Broadcasting Company's network on "The Spirit of Modern Literature". He has aroused much comment by naming W. B. Yeats as the greatest of all living writers. An interesting comment on his first talk is made by Mr. Hugh Walpole in the October 24th issue of "John O' London's Weekly".

The Picaadilly Fountain Press are reviving the true spirit of Dickens by publishing, "Pickwick Papers", in fortnightly parts. Copperplate reproductions of all the famous pictures by Seymour and Philz will accompany each installment. The whole of "Pickwick" is to be printed in twenty parts.

In the near future we shall review Eugene O'Neill's latest play, "Mourning Becomes Electra"; Knut Hamsun's, "August" and "Open House", edited by Deacon and Reeves.

A digest of Items and Opinions from other College Papers

Thirteen students at the Ohio State University have signified their willingness to volunteer portions of their blood for the preparation of a serum for the combating of infantile paralysis under the plan recently initiated by the medical research department at that university.

Note taking is banished for students in psychology at a Massachusetts college by the publication of a new specially prepared textbook which has the main facts of the course. According to the professor "note taking substitutes the hand for the brain, and in the end offers only a very poor and incomplete reproduction of the lecture."

McGill Freshmen Awarded Dominion Championship

Victory By Default Of Ont. 'Aggies'

Title is "Junior Inter-collegiate Champions of Canada."

ROAD TO FAME HA BEEN SHORT

Whitewashed Bishop's, And Then Beat Varsity 4-2.

MCGILL'S Freshman football team may claim the Junior Inter-collegiate Championship of Canada. It was learned yesterday afternoon, The Ontario Agricultural College have forfeited their chance to play-off with "Dunc" Anderson's squad; in fact the Ontario "Aggies" denied by wire that they have ever had a junior team.

Have Had Short Career.

The story of McGill's junior fight to fame is a short one. They first met Bishop's College here early this month and trimmed them by a terrific score of 23-0 on a greasy field. Then last Saturday they invaded Varsity, the former titleholders, and squeezed out a 4-2 win over that team by virtue of a rouge, and a placement kick.

That win in itself should give the freshmen some satisfaction, for the blue and white squad were favourites to cop the championship again. It will be regretted here, however, that a better opportunity of seeing the red and white in action will not be given—no doubt the freshmen themselves regret it as much as anybody.

SPORT NOTICES

BASKETBALL

Special medical examinations will be conducted today and tomorrow for those students desiring to participate in basketball competition. The examinations will be held at 3834 University Street from 12:15 p.m. to 1:15 p.m.

McGill Basketeers Prepare For City League Title Again

Coach Van Wagner Smiles As Team Shows up Well

Halpenny, Talpis And Lewin Are Out — Other Old-timers Expected Soon

THE basketball horizon is gradually clearing up with the appearance of most of last year's stalwarts at the workout last night. Although it is reported to be against his principles, Coach Van Wagner is walking about with just the faintest suggestion of a smile around the corners of his mouth—an unusual thing for Van, but not very extraordinary under the circumstances.

Without doubt, the cage squad is once more beginning to assume the aspects of a championship aggregation. Bob Calhoun, skipper of the senior intercollegiate quintet, has left his cot in the hospital, and made his initial appearance at the Montreal High School gymnasium last night; however he did not take part in the proceedings, and will in most probability rest up for a short while. Mel Rice, guard, and Don Young, centre, are the only other regulars that have not yet attended.

Halpenny Out. Jerry Halpenny, guard on last year's City League team, has quickly forsaken his football togs for a lighter basketball uniform; he took part in the scrimmage last night, along with Bunny Talpis, who, has also started working out. Harry Church and Hammy Hammond, both on the last year's City League squad have yet to be heard of.

The program yesterday consisted mainly of a five-man defence scrimmage, in which aspirants for the two teams took part. The Faulkner-Smith combine showed flashes of mid-season form, with telling effect. For the most part, the activities were confined to passing, very little shooting being indulged in. Weber, who is considered by many as the best ball-handler on the team, lived up to his reputation, and executed some fine passes that elicited gasps of admiration from the onlookers; his huris, although giving the impression of having been carelessly thrown, are usually well-directed. He ought to go (Continued on Page Four) new venture, and all women students are eligible. It is not an inter-year competition but an individual one and there will be no eliminations. See Duggan, the manager.

- The events will be:

  2. Breast Stroke.
  3. Free Style.
  4. Crawl.
  5. Low Spring Board: three tries, optional, standing or running.
  6. High Dive.
  7. Fancy Dives.
  8. Long plunge: three tries.
  9. Side-stroke.

SOCCER NOTICE

There will be a soccer meeting on Tuesday Nov. 24th at 5 p.m. in the Reading Room of the Union. The 1932 States trip will be discussed in detail and a final decision will be made. Those who bought shoes make a special point of being on hand. All first team equipment must be turned in by Thursday. It should be left at Mr. Finlay's office in the Physical Education Department on University St.

The election of next years officers will also take place. Any one who cannot be present please notify Mr. Finlay or Geo. Owen well in advance. It is essential that there be a full turnout — the Union Reading Room Tuesday, 24th at 5 p.m.

FROSH-SOPH MEET POSTPONED.

The Freshman-Sophomore, which was scheduled for tomorrow evening in the K. of C. pool has been postponed until Friday of next week.

SECOND PRACTICE

The second practice of the McGill swimming squad will be held at the Knights tank this afternoon at 5:30. Preparations are being made to pick a team for the dual meet with the M.A.A.A. on Dec. 16th.

ENGINEERING '32

A class basketball practice will be held tonight in the Montreal High School Gymnasium. This is the only practice before the start of the schedule. All who are interested are asked to turn out.

R.V.C. '32 and '34

Will all those in second and fourth years who are interested in basketball please turn-out to a practice today at three o'clock in Convocation Hall.

SENIOR HOCKEY

There will be a practice this afternoon at 1:30.

JUNIOR HOCKEY

The junior hockey hour this afternoon is at 2:30.

Junior Hockey

There will be a practice of the team at 2:30 p.m. sharp today at the Forum. Coach Bobby Bell will be on hand to instruct the squad and all others who turn out.

All those who have not formerly held amateur cards will have to bring birth certificates or affidavits, certifying the date of their birth.

The following men are requested to turn out:

Doherty, McLarnon, Duff, Newton, Cromble, Lamb, MacNeil, Wilson, Fyfe, Morse, Charlton, Tait, McDougall, Johnson, Kenny and Broome.

All-Stars Defeat Soccer Reserves On Muddy Pitch

Brand, of Montreal West High School, Scores Three Goals

WIN BY 3-2

ON a campus covered with snow and mire the Reserves were conquered yesterday by the All-Stars of the High School League, by the score of 3-2. The game was naturally a slow one, since sure footing was at no time available. As the score suggests, the match was evenly fought throughout, and it was only the whistle that averted a tie, as McGill were pressing hard during the last ten minutes of the game.

The school lads started off enthusiastically, and had the McGill defence worried for several minutes. McGill, however, soon took control of the play, and under the able leadership of Centre-forward Johnston paraded down the field and bombarded Goalie Traversy of Lower Canada College with a multitude of shots, to which he stood up like a veteran.

Play Becomes Fast

Schofield, of the High Schools' defence, cleared and saved his side at a critical moment. The play then moved to McGill's territory, and then saw-sawed up and down the field until McGill combined from a clearance and Johnston beat L.C.C.'s goalie with a clever shot between the latter's legs. Score, McGill 1; High Schools 0.

Half-Time Score 1-1

This setback appeared to prove the necessary incentive, for the All-Stars retaliated with a fast goal past Swift within two minutes after the face-off. Swift was playing a good game in the Red goal and was saving them from all angles. This goal, however, gave him no chance whatsoever, as it found the far corner of the net from the toe of Brand, who started at centre-forward for the visitors, and annexed a hat-trick for his share in the afternoon's proceedings. The half-time whistle went soon after that and found the teams deadlocked with one goal each to their credit.

McGill Weak In 2nd Half

With the second half under way, the Red half-backs appeared to suspend their former vigilance over the opposing forwards, with the result that the ever-dangerous Brand found himself in free possession of the ball far too often. This eventually led to the scoring of the Schoolboys' next two tallies, for in case of the winning goal, all five of their forwards were uncovered. Score, All-Stars 3; McGill 1.

McGill now went after the visitors with a vengeance, and blocked their efforts on every turn, showing by far the best football of the game. They were now trying hard to even the score, and kept the play well in the visitors' section of the field for the greater part of the time. Finally their efforts met with the success they merited, and McGill got its second goal from a rebound by Lynn, after Traversy had got in the way of Johnston's kick. Score, McGill 2; All-Stars 3.

Fight Against Time

From then on it developed more into a fight against the final whistle, than against McGill's opponents, for the Reserves were anxious at least to even the count with the team that had defeated them last year. The Red forwards pressed continually and had the All-Star defence at their mercy more than once, only to have a slippery ball rob them of well-deserved goals. As a matter of fact, Ross, playing inside-right, got his foot to the ball, but Referee Dick called the play offside. This proved to be McGill's last chance, for the whistle went immediately afterwards. Referee T. M. Dick refereed the game to the satisfaction of all, let- (Continued on Page Four)

Senior Natators Lose to Y.M.H.A. By Small Margin

Bourne, in Fine Form, Scores Two Goals Against Hebrew Mermen

JUNIORS LOSE 9-1

Referee Quinn Hands Out Many Penalties in Double-header at "Y" Pool

Y.M.H.A. have never been beaten in their own tank. The shallow end only contains three feet of water, and the deep-end nets are so situated that no opposing team has ever got onto either the defense of it nor the method of scoring into it. Yet last night the "Y" nearly suffered their first downfall there, and it was the McGill team, one of the weak sisters of the league, that led them by a goal at half-time, and held the score deadlocked till 15 seconds from the end. A rather large crowd was wild right through the whole encounter.

The return of the Rev. Philip Matthews to the McGill defense had a great deal to do with the improvement in the team. Thoroughly dependable on the defense, and accurate in his passes to the forwards, Phil made for a great deal of added strength. Then Mark Stein showed a great deal of improvement in his play, engineering manoeuvres which resulted in scores a couple of times.

Davis Scores First

As a result of a "Y" penalty, and rather poor shooting on the part of McGill, no goals were scored till near the end of the first half. By that time Bourne had also been banished from the water, and things were even when Davis threw one into the corner of the deep-end nets. The goaling of Wayland saved McGill several times here, notably on the free shot following Bourne's penalty.

"Y" evened the score to the delight of the tumultuous gallery immediately after the start of the second period, but Stein and Bourne combined on a beautiful goal to put McGill ahead again. Two long shots by Fargeon and a penalty goal by Bourne made the score even till with 15 seconds remaining the home team scored while they were short one man to take the game.

The McGill junior team looked well in the first period, when they held the Y.M.H.A. juniors to a two goal margin, Worrall getting one goal against three "Y" tallies. In the second period McGill were rather badly out-classed in shooting, though they commanded their share of the play. The game ended with the score 9-1 for the Y.M.H.A.

Inter-Class Basketball

The managers of the following teams are asked to see Coach Van Wagner in the Physical Education Building TO-DAY: Arts I; Med. III, IV, V; Commerce I and III. Arrangements for practice hours must be made before Friday in order that the schedule may be drawn up.

Farquharson And McGillivray Will Captain Hockey

Are Deadlocked in Vote — Have Fine Records

BERT MCGILLIVRAY and Hugh Farquharson will be joint captains of McGill senior hockey team this season, as they defend their titles, Champions of Quebec and of the Intercollegiate. The decision to have two captains was only reached after two separate votes, one last spring, and the other this fall, had failed to break the deadlock between these two stellar players.

Farquharson has been a member of McGill's senior hockey team since 1923, when he was a relief winger. Ralph St. Germain, one of the greatest hockey players who has ever worn a red and white sweater, took a great interest in Farquharson, and predicted he would be a top-notch. That he prophesied rightly was apparent last winter, when Hugh was awarded the Forge Trophy, which goes to the player in the Q.A.H.A. who is judged to be the most valuable to his team.

McGillivray has had a fine career in McGill's hockey teams since 1923, when he was relief defenceman to a strong combination in George McTeer and Paul Smith. When Smith graduated McGillivray got his chance, and he has become one of the mainstays of the team. Last year his steady blocking, and fast skating won him honourable mention in every game. He is a player who is always good, and who stays on the ice. McGillivray, for a defenceman, spends remarkably little time on the penalty bench.

With these two players at the helm McGill should be headed for another banner hockey season. They can be counted on to always work together for the good of the team.

B.W. & F. To Hold Novice Tournament

Boxing And Wrestling Bouts To Be Held Thursday

PRACTICES 5 TO 6

THE date of the forthcoming tournament for novice boxers and wrestlers has definitely been set for Thursday, November 26th. This will give the newcomers exactly a week in which to get into shape for a meet which so far has caused a great deal of interest among the freshmen. The contest is an innovation this year on the part of the B. W. & F. executive, and should it prove successful, it will no doubt be repeated each season.

Practices are now being held in the Field House on Tuesday and Thursdays from 5 to 6 for boxing and on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 5 to 6 for wrestling. The following freshmen who have shown interest in boxing and wrestling are asked to report at the above hours.

Both Trusteeship And Segregation Certain To Fail

may do so only insofar as they do not interfere with the Whites.
Regarding trusteeship, it is found when examined, to amount to domination. The condescending altruism of this point of view is expressed by the swaggar of its adherents.

Fear Cause
Concerning the attitude on the part of the Whites, especially the poorer classes of them, towards the Negroes fear is found to be the underlying factor. It is claimed by some that the Negro with his inferior standard of living is a menace to the White worker. Others are afraid that, as he gains in education, the White artisan will no longer be able to compete with him on a basis of skill. The Dutch farmer feels that he is in danger of being pushed off the land by his black competitor.

Co-operative Spirit Needed
Neither of these methods of grappling with the problem will succeed, said the speaker. Nor, he added, will any other method, until a broader spirit of sympathy and partnership prevails among the native Whites.

In outlining the attitude of the British Government toward the question, Professor Clarke stated that it favoured greater co-operation between the two races. The Home Government had expressed its view in 1924, and re-affirmed it in 1930, that it would consider no suggestion for granting the Whites any powers of domination.

McGill Basketeers Prepare For City League Title Again

far in intercollegiate competition this season.

Lewin Looks Good
Lewin, who comes from the University of Dartmouth, has already created an impression, and has evidently been singled out by Van Wagner as a good prospect for the first team. The mentor is trying to get him working into the Faulkner-Small combination; it shouldn't take much longer before that will be accomplished, as Lewin looks like a first-class man.

On paper, it looks as though McGill will be represented by a better team than last year, even though the 1930 edition of the cage squad was a hard one to beat. Untouched by graduation on any other restrictive influences, the regular line-up will be the same, unless some new man usurps the place of one of the "Old Ironsides." With Young at centre, flanked by Small and Faulkner as forwards, backed up by Rice and Calhoun on guard, the team will be a hard one to turn back. This same line-up won the City championship last season, and would have gone much further had the college authorities permitted it. Hence, it would seem that intercollegiate laurels are to be their highest aspiration this year, and with the aid of such redoubtable men as Weber, Lewin, MacLean, and Moore, if the last two turn out, McGill can quite safely look forward to another cage title.

and subsequently by the guns of the present day. Thus it is natural for man to fight and no amount of disarmament will force him to stop. So long as we are nationalized, stated the speaker, mistrust between nations will exist.

Education Only Means
International amity and peace can not be brought about by disarmament; the only lasting means is to remove the love of fighting from one's heart. Bolivia and Paraguay were cited as two countries which upheld peace without disarmament. In conclusion the speaker repeated a sentiment which ran through his whole speech, that the only effective method to outlaw war is by education and not by disarmament.

Hubert Dody was the third speaker of the evening. He stated that the only way that Western Civilization can live up to its ideals as a great moral force is by disarmament. Again human life is sacred and to destroy it is in direct opposition to the well being of mankind. In conclusion, the speaker, advocating disarmament that the present facilities of the world could be used to alleviate the troubles of every nation.

Cyril Earle, the final speaker of the evening by stating that we should protect our lives by armaments in the same way as we protect ourselves by insurance. In the past arms have stood in good stead, and as we cannot eradicate the past, we should not attempt disarmament. Arms are extremely necessary to the stability of the world, they have proved their worth in the past, so why should we do away with them to-day, said the speaker in conclusion.

By a vote of the Judges—Dr. Abbott-Smith, Professor W. T. Waugh and assistant-professor A. S. Noad, Arthur Marshall was deemed the best speaker of the evening with C. E. F. Wolf being next.

Players' Club Ask Support In New Dramatic Venture

hair-raising adventure they are likely to want.

Author Persevered
"The life story of Georg Kaiser is as unconventional and interesting as his works. He was born in 1878, a sickly, hypersensitive child, a bundle of nerves, predestined to suffer. After an unconventional apprenticeship in his father's business in Magdeburg he spent three years in Buenos Aires where he contracted malaria which held him in its clutches for eight years. He wrote his first play at twenty-five, published it at thirty and had it performed at thirty-five, a remarkable instance of indomitable perseverance.

All the time he was desperately poor, overwhelmed with debt, often reaching the very limit of physical endurance when further borrowing had become impossible. He might very well have starved, as no doubt many a better man had starved before him, ere he could give us the fulness of his genius. Luckily his soul seemed riveted to his very bones and he lived to see the day when stage and cinema vied with each other to make him rich beyond his wildest dreams. He was then nearly forty, an age at which wisdom of some kind comes to most men. Not so in the case of Georg Kaiser who was only beginning to startle the world.

Playwright Arrested
Like a bolt from the blue came the news that the popular playwright had been arrested for embezzlement. While admitting the truth of the charge he pleaded that as a poet he stood outside the common order of things, that whoever had created much should thereby be exempted from punishment. One of the high spots in his plaidoyer were the words: "I must be able to butcher my children if I have faith in myself". The court was no doubt startled as well it might be, but it condemned Kaiser nevertheless to a term of imprisonment.

He found comfort in the reflection: "I am sorry for my fellow authors as my prison experience gives me an advantage over them". This disregard of the conventional and his courage to pursue his thought to its cruellest ultimate conclusion characterizes much of his work.

Prolific Author
He is a phenomenally fertile playwright. So far he has about forty dramas to his credit: fables, comedies, problem plays and tragedies. All is grist that comes to his mill: ancient and modern times, history, legend, myth, the life of the school, the bank, the prison and the factory and though the mere desire to produce new effects may often be unpleasantly to the fore we must admit that by boldly freeing himself from the shackles though by no means as often as his friends would have us believe, succeeded in producing effects of striking novelty in plot, dialogue and setting.

Kaiser claims that his sole vision in everything he writes is the renewal of man and the discovery of the new man. In this he probably deceives himself. The old Adam we know so well stalks through most of his plays and generally does not look as if he were worth renewing. There are nevertheless a few attempts to show us the new man, as in "The Citizens of Calais", probably his best play with its plea in favour of the claims of humanity as superior to those of patriotism, however heroic. He is less convincing in two dramas entitled "Gas" or their successor, the fantastic "Gates".

Looking For New Man
Kaiser is still looking for the new man and, judging by the astounding variety of his dramatic experiments, we may conclude that his vision is unduly blurred and is not likely to produce definite results for some time to come. Meanwhile Kaiser continues to shock conservatives in morals, politics and stage technique for which he deserves our heartfelt gratitude.

BAND PRACTICES
There will be a practice this afternoon at five o'clock. It is important that everyone attend. (42).

New Art Group Started in City

characterized by an unprecedented and intensely critical attitude towards the fundamental aims of art, which have resulted in the realization of the necessity for order and structure. This is in many respects a return to the classical point of view which may be described as an harmony of manmade form as opposed to the chaos of nature as the eye sees it, an intellectual as opposed to an emotional reaction.

Emphasize Form
"This emphasis on the study of form, in any medium, will be the guiding principle of The Atelier." From time to time the organizers of The Atelier hope to hold public lectures dealing with the more recent developments in architecture, sculpture and painting and in all applications of functional design which have arisen out of modern conditions.

NOTICE
The members of the Metallurgical Society who will visit the foundry of the Robert Mitchell Company, on Friday afternoon, will meet in front of the Chemistry and Mining Building at two o'clock. At five o'clock the members will be addressed in the Mining Lecture room.
